PEACE DECLARED THURS.

Germany, hat in hand, begs for Peace--Rushes Armistice Mission to Foch's Headquarters

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.--Germany is standing, hat in hand, at the door of Marshall Foch's headquarters humbly begging for peace. Deserted by all her former allies, her great military machine in the process of destruction by the onslaughts of the Entente Allied armies, her dream of world-domination rudely dissipated, Germany begs for a cessation of hostilities, notwithstanding the hard terms she knows she must pay.

Later reports confirm Thursday's report that Germany has thrown up the sponge.

W. H. MADDEN PASSES AWAY

Citizens of Irma and district will be greatly shocked and grieved to learn of the untimely death of one of our leading and most esteemed young men, in the person of Mr. W. H. Madden, who succumbed to an attack of influenza, Wednesday afternoon, at the age of 32 years.

Mr. Madden, who is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Madden, of Nanapanee, Ont. has been local manager of the Merchants' Bank, since the branch was opened in 1917. During his residence in Irma, he has through his good judgement, sympathetic interest, and loyal support of all things affecting the welfare of the community, placed himself high in the estimation of everyone in the district, and for himself a host of friends, who will most sincerely mourn his death. A gap is created which will not soon be filled, and his memory will be long cherished by his fellow townsmen.

Mr. Madden has been, during practically the whole of his business career associated with the Merchants Bank, and in that time of faithful service, has held many positions of high trust in various branches in British Columbia. Assuming the management of the local branch when it was opened, he had in that brief time, through his energy and ability, established a splendid business and fully demonstrated that he possessed the requisites of a successful banker and a progressive citizen.

He was married in September last to Miss E. M. Simpson of Lacombe, and had only been home a brief time from a honeymoon spent at the coast, when seized with a fatal illness. Thus death has intervened, at the full tide of young manhood, to bereave a happy young bride, and to cut off a highly successful and honorable career. Deepest sympathy is extended to the sorrowing relatives.

Burial will take at Mr. Madden's former home, Nanapanee, Ont.

Church Notice.

The past week has been one of very sore trials and severe agony in some quarters and our whole community has been expressing its sympathy. Our efforts to keep away the angel of death have not been successful and three have succumbed to pneumonia following influenza. Miss Evelyn Johnston on Sunday morning and Mr. W. H. Madden on Wednesday afternoon and John W. Bayne on Thursday morning, and to other homes has come the sad message of death of loved ones in distant parts. In these cases it has been a comfort to be able to fall back on the promises of a loving God who is master of life and death. These are times of testing and the strong cannot boast of his strength nor the fearless of his courage. The searching question each of us must be facing is that of heart relationship. Is there heart right with God? Is there any

As a matter of business, what do you think of the plan?

You are a farmer.
Canada is a farming country.
Canada grows more food than the people of Canada need.

To prosper she must sell that surplus food.

Great Britain is our best customer for grain, pork, beef, cheese and other farm products.

Every practical man must see how important it is to hold the British trade. Canada wants not only the profit on this trade, she wishes to create a goodwill in Britain towards Canadian products and thus assure our export business for the future.

At the moment Great Britain asks for credit, asks Canada to sell her the products of the farm, "on time." To hold her trade, it is necessary to give this credit.

This takes capital--immense capital. For Britain's purchases from Canada are huge, and these purchases must be paid for in cash.

In these times, it is not easy even for a nation as wealthy as Canada to procure money. Certainly, no other country can lend us money. The only way now open for Canada to secure money is to borrow from the people of Canada.

This is the reason for selling Victory Bonds.

Can anyone deny the sound business sense of this plan of protecting our valuable market?

From the standpoint of the man who lends, what better security could he get for his money? Where else could he get a five and a half per cent. return on such security? Where would he find an investment to pay interest so regularly and with so little trouble to the lender? Certainly Canadians have an opportunity to benefit very directly from this borrowing plan.

And the money Canada borrows is spent entirely in Canada--a very large part of it for the very crops the farmer has to sell.

Therefore, if the Victory Loan is a success, business in Canada must be good, the nation must prosper and so be able to carry on a vigorous war effort in France and Flanders.

As a practical man you must approve of the Victory Loan plan.

Then help it along. Put your own money into Victory Bonds; urge your friends to buy; work hard among your loyal neighbors to make the Victory Loan 1918 an overwhelming success.

H. G. THUNELL IN TORONTO

H. G. Thunell, Editor of the Viking News, left last Tuesday evening to join the Royal Air Force.

Mr. Thunell signed up with the Royal Air Force some time ago, but was not called sooner as the supply of "fliers" was greater than the demand. However a few days ago Tun received a letter calling him to Edmonton for examination and he lost no time in obeying the summons. "Tun," as he was commonly known, was a very enthusiastic athlete, taking part in all sorts of healthy outdoor sports and making a hobby of the manly art of "self-defense." Under these circumstances it was no surprise when word came that he had been passed as O.K. at Edmonton and had proceeded to Calgary to undergo a further examination and obtain his discharge from the Infantry. Apparently he was as successful at Calgary as at Edmonton for he sent a wire from Calgary Thursday morning saying that he was to leave for Toronto that day.

Tun's many friends will miss him greatly, but they are delighted to know that he is in the "King of them All," as the air service is known--if being considered by the air-men, at least, far superior to any of the other branches, either naval or military--and they are confident that he will make a successful aviator. Tun was an all round good sport and we always knew that he would sprout wings some day, but time has come sooner than we expected.

We wish him every success in his new vocation and trust the time is not far distant when he will be back on the job editing the Viking News.

While Mr. Thunell is away on military service the Times will be carried on by Mr. Love and Mr. Holliday and they will be pleased to meet you at any time to arrange for ads or items for the paper.

Miss E. Johnston Victim Pneumonia

It is with intense regret and much sympathy for the bereaved family we report the death of Miss Evelyn Johnston from pneumonia.

Miss Johnston was about 23 years of age and came to Alberta from Nova Scotia about a year ago. In September she accepted the position of teaching in the Education Point school district, where her pupils were very much attached to her. She became ill a week ago and on last Friday afternoon was removed to Irma, where, in spite of every care and attention, she lived only until Sunday noon.

The remains have been shipped to her home at Barney's River, Nova Scotia.

Flu Epidemic Has Reached the Peak

Apparently the district has seen the worst of the epidemic. If the public will continue to take all precaution ordered by the Health Department it looks as if the epidemic would be stopped. There are several bad cases yet but most of those taking the disease at first are on the way to recovery. The Doctor is too busy to make any report and all those suffering with a cold should take all possible precaution till they are sure they have recovered.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. E. Erickson on Nov. 5th, a daughter. Both mother and daughter are doing well.

Tongul Swatrud Succumbs to Flu

On Wednesday evening the death occurred under painful circumstances of Tongul Swatrud, at Bruce. The deceased, of whom very little is known was working on the ditch digging scheme west of Bruce when he was suddenly taken down with the flu. It had a strange effect making him delirious and he managed to get out of his room and on to the prairie, catching a heavy cold which caused complications.

He was buried on Friday morning at the Viking cemetery by Rev. T. F. Lund, of the Community church.

John Bayne Dies Of Pneumonia

On Thursday morning at 6 o'clock John W. Bayne, 42 yrs. old, died of pneumonia following influenza. Mr. Bayne was a rancher just moving into the Kinsella district.

A Good Farm

— IS WORTH GOOD BUILDINGS —

Any farm is good that provides a living for the family.
 Comfortable buildings help to make a poor farm good and a good farm better.

Even the land that has been ruined and "turned to the Log" may be brought back to life by the aid of live stock; but first you must have buildings and fences to make the live stock comfortable.

Each farm is shy a building or two, and most farms need more fencing.
 Fences for range, health and pasture; barns and stables for storage and winter feeding.

If animals require all their feed to keep them alive and warm, then the grain is being burned for fuel, while the animals are marking time.
 Time may not be much of an object to the animal, but it is to the owner.

Meeting of Teachers

The meeting of the Teachers' Association held on Saturday, Oct. 19 was very successful. A very interesting talk was given by Mrs. Kitchen. Those present found it a great help indeed. The next meeting will be held on the second Saturday in November. All teachers are requested to be present.

The following gives the substance of the talk given:

Madam President and fellow teachers:—At this time when the birds and flowers are gone and we are scarce of material for our nature work (if ever we can be scarce of material for that, subject) we find rocks a good substitute to which we may turn.

In our elementary schools we cannot hope to make accurate tests of the rocks nor to be perfectly sure of every constituent of a rock, for for that is laboratory work, but we can familiarize the pupils with the more common rocks about us and give them a foundation for more advanced work.

I find children are over anxious to bring in specimens to ask "what is this one" with no apparent reason in finding out its name. Now in my school days we were taught the more common ones: quartz, milky and crystalline; Granite, grey, black and red; Fools gold; Trap and Conglomerate Rock. After we had learned those quite thoroughly we were asked to find specimens of each sort and we learned to be very discriminating, naming the ones we had found and getting the teacher's idea on the matter after we had made our own decision.

When on our expedition for granite we found granite in all its colors and grains, and nothing but granite.

Teach the children that granite is a rock made up of quartz, feldspar and mica. The granite mostly quartz, is a light grey color easily distinguished from the mica granite which is dark grey, almost black in some cases. The granite, rich in feldspar, is the most easily weathered and though a beautiful stone when finished and polished it is frost cracked and disintegrates quickly and crumbles into soil. It ranges in color from light pink to red.

Fools gold is an easy one for children to learn, because of its shine, teach them that it is a useless iron—ore which "fools" have mistaken for gold and found that "all is not gold that glitters." It is useless for itself but its presence indicates mineral wealth in any country where it is found.

Quartz is found here, mostly in the "milky variety, though it is interesting for children to learn of the crystalline variety too. Quartz is easily distinguished by its hardness and the boys will soon learn to make a fair set of initials on the window with it. Perhaps the first ornaments of precious stones worn by humans were crystals of amethyst quartz, ruby quartz, or emerald quartz, for quartz is of many colors. Now our gems are cut by skilled workmen but the first jewels were natural four, six or eight sided crystals.

There is the interesting trap rock which at one time poured forth from a volcano, a mass of molten lava, and cooled leaving the little air bubbles as holes all thru it.

Conglomerate rock is an easy one the idea appeals to the child that nature has made a big mud pie or clay pudding and pressed the little water worn pebbles in for raisins, and right here you may introduce the rock of sun-baked clay and explain how primitive peoples have utilized this clay to make very serviceable pottery.

In fact the greatest value to be

Military Service Act, 1917.

EMPLOYMENT OF MEN IN DEFAULT UNDER THE MILITARY SERVICE ACT.

The following Regulations, recently approved by the Governor General in Council, impose strict obligations upon every employer TO ASSURE HIM-SELF THAT EACH OF HIS EMPLOYEES OF MILITARY AGE AND DESCRIPTION IS IN POSSESSION OF DOCUMENTS PROVING THAT HE IS NOT IN ANY WAY IN DEFAULT
UNDER THE MILITARY SERVICE ACT.

An employer who is charged with having a defaulter in his employ must be able to prove THAT THE MILITARY SERVICE PAPERS
ISSUED BY THE REGISTRAR OR MILITARY AUTHORITIES TO THE EMPLOYEE IN QUESTION
WERE PRODUCED FOR HIS INSPEC-TION at the time when the employee was taken into his employment, and that it was reasonably established to his satisfaction that the man was not in default under the Military Service Act. It should be clearly understood that the Canadian Registration Certificates given on June 22, 1918, at the time of general registration, in no way define the status of a man under the Military Service Act.

REGULATIONS.

"106. Every person who employs or retains in his service any man who has deserted or is absent without leave from the Canadian Expeditionary Force, or who is in default in the performance of any obligation or requirement for reporting or for military service, imposed upon him by the Act or Regulations, or any proclamation thereunder, shall be guilty of an offence punishable on summary conviction by imprisonment not exceeding six months, or by a penalty of not less than One Hundred Dollars, and of not more than Five Hundred Dollars, or by both such imprisonment and fine, unless such person prove that

MILITARY AUTHORITIES TO THE MAN SO EM-PLOYED OR RETAINED
IN HIS SERVICE WERE PRODUCED FOR HIS IN-SPECTION, and that it was reasonably established to his satisfaction by such inquiry and papers that the man was not a deserter or absent from the force without leave, or in default in respect of any of the obligations or requirements aforesaid."

obtained from this branch of nature study is not so much from the rocks themselves as from their relations to other subjects; for instance trap is an igneous rock, a fire formed rock, there is the chance for a spelling lesson, and the association in the child's mind will be: volcano—fire—igneous—ignite—ignition.

Perhaps these lessons are too simple for your pupils, if so there is the deeper subject of geology, you may show them any cut or side of a bank which goes to prove that these are flood plains. The layers of clay separated by thin black streaks, are layers of silt deposited by each successive flood, the thin black streak is decayed vegetation which at one time covered the former layer of silt.

There is also the idea of some scientists that this country was once covered with glaciers; tell the children that the pile of worn rocks of all sizes (that are to be seen in such masses and often on the top of a hill at that) are the deposit of some glacier when it melted. Explain the formation of one of our river beds or deep coulees in this way: as you stand on a flat-topped hill on the other side you can easily imagine that at one time it was all a level plain and the river gradually wore its way deeper and deeper until we have two plateaus with a river valley between, or perhaps a few stagnant pools or sloughs to show where a river has been.
You may explain to how our sloughs appear to gradually dry up year after until they become but pools in spring time. This is well within the experience of most school children and it will help to explain the changing of the earth's surface year by year.

I may have given too much time to so small a subject, and were it for the value of geology for its own sake, I should feel that I have. For we cannot hope to make much of so great a science as geology in the small time we have to devote to it in our elementary schools. But let me say again: Its true value for us lies in its relations to other subjects in the curriculum.

The Co-op received word Thursday morning that the car of B. C. potatoes was at Camrose. This should arrive here Friday night.

EPIDEMIC INFLUENZA

Instructions Regarding Care of Sick Persons

Since Thousands of People Are Nursing Influenza Patients in the Province the Following Instructions Will Be of Value

1. Fresh air is the most essential requisite to the comfort and well being of patients, no matter how ill.
2. Rest in bed for three days after fever has gone, is urged to prevent complications.
3. Pneumonia cases should not be kept in the same room with uncomplicated influenza cases.
4. Nourishing food at regular intervals.
5. Plenty of water or Lemonade.

6. General unworried service. Avoid chattering, nagging or questioning. Anticipate wants of sickest patients; convalescents usually ask for what they want. Keep the patients in isolated room, in separate beds. Keep patients in bed all of the time This means patient must not get up to go to the bathroom. Two or three pillows arranged step fashion, the lowest well under the shoulders, will make breathing easier. Keep the arms and shoulders well covered. Ventilate the room freely. At the outset, headache and backache are frequent. Cold cloths, moist but not dripping, to the head, changed frequently, give some relief.

Avoid anything that might cause the slightest chill.

Care of Mouth. A mouth wash every few hours and cold cream to the lips helps to keep the mouth in a normal condition.

If the patient is extremely weak, swab the teeth carefully with moistened cotton applications three times daily.

Cough. Patient should keep mouth covered when coughing. Paper napkins or three thicknesses of toilet paper used only once, are safer and better than rags or handkerchiefs. Keep a small paper bag pinned to bedside, within easy reach of patient's hand, to receive the used napkins. Change bag at least twice daily, or whenever it becomes half full.

The invisible spray from the mouth and nose during coughing and sneezing is as dangerous as visible expectoration. Convalescent patients can be masked; weak patients are annoyed by them.

Food. For the unhappy, feverish patients, liquid diet, hot or cold, as preferred milk, lemonade, weak tea and coffee, broths. For convalescents and patients not feverish, soft diet, gruels, cooked cereals, milk toast, jellies, soft boiled eggs, etc.

Food may be kept warm in a thermos bottle.

All patients should drink some water every hour when awake.

Precautions. All mouth washes, bathwater, exeta, and uneaten liquid food should be thrown into the toilet by the attendant.

All bags, napkins, scraps of uneaten food, mouth swab, etc., should be wrapped in clean news paper before being carried to the kitchen to be destroyed by burning.

All linen, sheets, masks, towels, etc., should be submerged in a large kettle of cold water in the sickroom, or put in a pillow slip, or laundry bag. This can be safely carried to the kitchen stove and when contents have been boiled five minutes anyone may finish caring for the linen. When attendant cannot stop to wash her own hands, door knobs, faucets, etc., should be protected by scraps of newspaper, which may be destroyed after each using. Attendants must be constantly masked, must wear big old over aprons in sickroom, changing it to a different one always before entering any other part of the house. Attendant must keep facilities for washing her own hands, soap, nail brush and paper towels, in clean place and never touch the patient or patient's utensils without afterward cleansing her own hands thoroughly. Running water is better and safer than a basin of weak disinfectant kept for the hands alone.

Everything used for the patient should be kept separate from the supplies for the rest of the household. This means dishes, bed linen, bath wraps, towels, face cloths, rocking chair, etc.

Families can help visiting nurses and kids by having hot water, towels and newspapers ready when nurses are expected.

"That's all right, Miss de Rochefort," Anthony reassured her cheerily. "Don't you worry, you'll all come back in time. Even tomorrow I expect you'll feel clearer about everything. You see, you had a very heavy knock on the back of your head. I expect you fell, or something like that—in addition to all those bad burns, and when you were brought in here you were half suffocated by the smoke. All those things, added to the excitement and anxiety you must have gone through before you lost consciousness, might easily have made you far, far worse than you are, so the doctor has to think. Everything will come of its own accord. But haven't you really any idea what happened between the time you went to bed and when the room caught fire. Don't you remember trying to open the door, and calling for Marie?"

"I remember nothing," she answered sadly.

"Well, never mind," Anthony admonished her. "The doctor, you know, Miss de Rochefort, telling you not to try and think about it, and the minute after you were brought here, I ought to be ashamed of myself."

The girl's charming laugh rang out over his, and it only needed this musical sound to plunge poor Anthony quite deeply in love. Her voice's sweetness to him, as that laugh, her laugh, matched it. Her face as she talked was lit up and animated, her pretty half French smile, her eyes, her eyes, deep blue, and full of intelligence, all added to the fascinating picture she made, sitting there, propped up on her pillows, a little flushed color returning to her pale cheeks, and the glorious warm chestnut hair, falling over her shoulders, falling over her shoulders, and tied with big bows of blue ribbon, which matched her eyes, as the doctor mentally observed.

Charm she certainly possessed, although she was, and Anthony was fully conscious of it, as that laugh brought them a stage further into intimacy.

For quite another half hour they talked—at least he talked, making her smile again and again for the pleasure of seeing the "evening" with her belt on her, as she did so, and the charming and flattering amusement that lit up her beautiful eyes. When she only went word here and there, for the conversation was very one-sided, by his orders, but the little she said proved that she was fully as clever and intelligent as she looked.

The time passed with extraordinary rapidity, and Anthony, who was surprised when Marie entered the room, a little annoyed at not having been informed earlier, entered the room, a little disturbed at finding Viola, a teatime with the doctor. Heaven alone knew, Marie reflected, what mad mischief might not have said, if by any chance some of her memory had returned.

However, when Anthony had reluctantly bidden his patient good afternoon, the maid was able, by judicious questioning, to ascertain that her mistress had said nothing she shouldn't have, and, joyful news indeed, that she was feeling really stronger and better for the little talk she had had with her medical attendant.

Anthony, for his part, went off home with a joyful heart. His devoted hopes had proved true, and he believed that at last he had met his girl. He thought of her in every gesture, every smile, yoked himself during the afternoon, and comforted himself with the thought that at least his lady had seemed to enjoy his company. He counted the hours that must pass before it would be possible to visit her again, and he seemed most unreasonably long. He did not know what to do with himself—it was too dark for golf, otherwise he could have filled the time before dinner with that; he didn't feel like reading; he had no letters to write; what on earth was he

What Women Want to Know

Some Queries and Answers Regarding Conservation of Food

Matilda. No reason why you should feel depressed about the sugar situation. Aren't you using brown sugar? And have you tried out white corn syrup? It is not the retail market in two pound tins for 15 cents, five pound tins and also two pound tins. It is an excellent substitute for sugar. If you have recipes write to the food board at Ottawa for their pamphlet on glucose and white corn syrup for household use. I am giving you the recipe for a former time, but you asked for. This is how it is made at the Central Technical School, Toronto:

1 grapefruit; 1 orange; 1 lemon; 8 cups water; 10 cups glucose.

Cut fruit in thin slices and allow to stand in water for 36 hours or overnight. Separate seeds and soak them in part of water. Cook fruit until tender and add glucose. Continue cooking until jelly is obtained. When using sugar, 12 cups of water should be used for this amount of fruit, but 8 or even 6 cups will suffice with the glucose for it contains a great deal of water.

Mrs. Rex. You will be able to get plenty of fish this winter. You are being deceived by the food board to extend the distribution of fish during the winter months through a major order system for the benefit of farmers and fishermen in sections where fish are not retained. Dealers will be encouraged to cater to this trade by packing fish in 50 and 100 pound boxes, and the price for fish, shipping point, and accepting mail orders for delivery by express. In this way, a farmer can secure early in the winter sufficient frozen fish to last during the season, and thus cut down his consumption of other meats.

Fortage. Save your sunflower and buckwheat seeds for the chickens. As everyone knows, there is nothing chickens like better than buckwheat, and sunflower seeds give them a nice glossy appearance and a tonic in addition. Be sure that the seeds are mature before taking the head off the stalk. Then burn the stalks and use the ashes for fertilizer.

Diminution. "Why not close up the candy manufacturers?" Well, you are not the first to ask the question nor yet the last to have it answered. The candy manufacturers are not the sinners in respect to sugar at all. It may look like it, but in reality they are not. The manufacturers have been limited to the use of no more than 50 per cent. of the average quantity of sugar used by them for candy-making during 1917. Indeed, only 35 pounds out of every 100 used in Canada goes in the manufacture of candy. The export of sugar to any destination, regardless of value, is prohibited, except in the case of military and naval stores, and the weight limit of such parcels to the United Kingdom is 11 pounds and forwarding to France, seven pounds.

Royal. The number of convictions in Canada for violation of the food law is going up every day. Every day the Canada food board is closing down Canada food board's house or dealer for breaking one or other of the law. Those who have done so are hoarding may well feel alarm for a number of seizures of undue quantities of food stuffs have been made. Jenny. You sound like a cheerful person, Jenny, who views the food situation very sanely and sensibly. Too many people feel reassured now that the harvest is on but it must be kept in mind that conservation and production are the only ways of ever-increasing scale. No Canadian should permit any evidence of hoarding, plenty now to cause the slightest shadow of doubt toward food conservation. Everyone should save more scrupulously than ever, wheat, sugar and all other foodstuffs, and hold themselves ready to respond to such other calls as the Canada food board may be required by circumstances to make, and to be sure. In the meantime—remember sugar!

Confederate Half Dollar

Only Four of These Were Ever Struck

The Museum of the Numismatic Society in New York has received a gift of probably its rarest coin. This is the famous Confederate half-dollar, which included the United States mint. What coins were ever struck, of course, were used. The silver bullion was also mined into United States coins with the dies from the reverse of the 50-cent piece, showing a Confederate shield and star, of which but four were made, and two only are known to exist. The early days of the Civil War the Confederates, when they took New Orleans, seized all government property, and the silver bullion was used. The reverse side of the old United States half-dollar, showing a seated figure of Liberty surrounded by 13 stars, dated 1861, was to be used in conjunction with the new die.

Four pieces only were struck, probably to submit to the high officials in Richmond. No more pieces were ever struck, as the supply of bullion had run out, and during the life of the Confederacy no sufficient amount of bullion was ever obtained to strike any silver coins.

Didn't Know Sheep.

"Now, Harold," said the teacher, "if there were eleven sheep in a field and six jumped the fence, how many would there be left?"

"None," replied Harold.

"Why there would," said she.

"No, ma'am, there wouldn't," persisted Harold.

"You may know arithmetic, but you don't know sheep."

When Your Harvest Is In

Lay aside just a little more than two bushels of wheat. Buy yourself a present with that small portion of your harvest—a harvest that caused you no small anxiety, and which you have truly earned by the sweat of your brow. Be sure of this, however—make the present something really worth while. Here's a suggestion—

For five dollars you can buy at almost any hardware store, jeweler's or druggist's, a genuine Gillette Safety Razor, with twelve Gillette blades, in a handsome and durable case.

That is to say, with the price of the little wheat, or other produce you lay aside, you can make sure of an unlimited number of the finest shaves in the whole world—

You can join the ranks of the smartest looking men, who every morning indulge in a three or four-minute Gillette shave.

You can follow the example of hundreds of thousands of soldiers at the front, who find untold comfort in the perfect smoothness of the skin following the use of their Gillettes—

You can navigate the awkward corners and angles of the jaw, without leaving a hair or grazing the skin.

You know you have long wanted a Gillette. This is your opportunity. And let it be a souvenir of the part you played in the Great War.

Name Was On Black List

His Art Saved Finnish Commander From Slaughter

How Finland's greatest musical composer escaped destruction by the infamous Red Guards is told in a little translated from the "Hälsö Nachrichten" of July 14, under the heading "How Sibelius was saved."

"During the reign of terror in Finland John Sibelius, the great Finnish composer, was in very great danger of losing his life."

His rescuer, Professor Kajanus, tells in the "Hälsö Nachrichten" the following interesting story of the escape.

At the time the Red Guards thought themselves safe in power, they made up a black list of persons to be put to death, which included Sibelius. The list was made up by the Finnish minister of the interior, who was a close friend of Sibelius. The composer was in the city of Helsinki, and it was impossible to communicate with him. Sibelius himself knew his name to be on the black list; his friends in Helsinki knew it, too, and were much distressed about it. But no escape seemed available.

One day, in spite of all, Kajanus succeeded in obtaining a sledge, found it possible to go to the country house of Sibelius, and to endeavor to make good his escape.

The house was guarded, and subsequently it was known that Sibelius would have been executed two days later, although he had nothing to do with politics.

Kajanus called upon a chief of the Reds, bearing the title of war minister; he was a workman whom the Red Guard had taken out of the prison where he had been confined for several years for murder.

By chance Kajanus had heard that this murderer and war minister was a cornet blower and generally fond of music. After a long conversation, he asked the war minister whether he really wished that Sibelius, the creator of so many musical works, be killed.

This remark made such an impression upon the war minister that he made out a passport for Sibelius, with which Kajanus succeeded in passing the ring of Red Guards and so saved Sibelius."

Wax Used in the Manufacture of Lambrine

Miss Julia King, Colonel's Island, Georgia, shows how bees can help to win the war. She writes: "Many beekeepers would be glad to give wax to help with the making of lambrine, to heal the wounds of our soldiers without a scar, did they know how much the wax would help. I have over 50 colonies now, working with might and main, working as hard as they can, making honey to help out with the food supply and the shortage of sugar, and also making wax to give to the Red Cross for the making of lambrine."

Miss King explains that lambrine, discovered by Dr. Barthe de Sante-fort several years ago, is being used in military hospitals with such marvellous effect that patients, although horribly burned, show no scars, and the treatment is absolutely painless.

LOCAL NEWS

Constable Kline of the provincial police was in town last Tuesday and Wednesday watching for violators of the Provincial Health Act.

We have been too busy helping to look after the sick. If the news column is small this week blame it onto the flu.

The Co-op have received a wire from B.C. that one car of potatoes was shipped on Nov. 2 and this should be here about next Tuesday.

Mrs. M. Stewart, mother of Bert and Kenneth Stewart, received a wire Tuesday that her son Campbell Stewart had died with pneumonia at Peterborough, Ont. Mr. Stewart was 29 years old and leaves a wife and one child.

Eight persons at Stoney Plain were convicted before J. H. Forester, J.P., last Friday for breach of the Provincial Health Act by going out of doors without a mask and were each fined $5.00 and costs.

A rumor was started last week that Mr. A. R. Pennock was on the Steamer Sophia which was wrecked but Mrs. Pennock has written some of her friends that Redge had just survived a bad attack of the flu. Evidently this resulted in saving his life as all the passengers and crew of the ill-fated steamer were lost.

COAL SPRINGS

Olaf Lovig is erecting a creditable residence on the land which he recently purchased in Section 23 and will have the building completed before the winter sets in.

The threshers have finished the small lots of threshing in this district. Not much straw and less grain, but the machines were here anyway.

Rev. Chris Hoversten, our amiable minister, spent a few days in this district in the interests of the Victory Loan. Of the result of the campaign we are not informed, but have no doubt that our people will give the cause their earnest support. Owing to the prevalence of Spanish Influenza throughout the district, the canvassing will be difficult, and we trust that all will realize the situation, making the work of the canvassers as easy as possible.

Owing to the prevalence of Influenza, there were no services at the school house on Sunday.

Our school has been closed indefinitely.

We understand that the children at the John Christensen home are suffering from the epidemic.

holding back from the duty before us? Thank God for those in our midst who have so readily entered the place of disease and have ministered with all the power that they possessed. We must not be content with any religion that does not satisfy our heart yearnings for life nor call out our truest sympathy into living activity. The world needs more faith in God, the immortal one, and so much selfforgetting love today. The two cannot be separated. "Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die it abideth alone." Pain and suffering and sacrifice mean life.
C. G. Hocken, Pastor.
